coach), Phyllis Harrison (five year executive member), Pat Bains (three year executive member) and George Bains (20 year all-round involvement). Absent was Paul Stubbins. (Herald photo)

ReMax Peewees reach final of tourney consolation round

Georgetown's Mal Dodge ReMax Peewees competed in the Stayner Peewee Tournament on the weekend and finished as finalists in the consolation round of their division.

Even though the team had a 1-2 record, ReMax was competitive in all the matches.

The boys were outmuscled in their first game with Stayner and lost 3-0 to the hosts.

ReMax returned the favor against Erindale and won 5-0. Dave Doole scored three times as Sean Peasgood and Steve Markham added singles.

Captain Chris Corney set up the first goal for Doole with Peasgood assisting on one of the others. Keith Hunt hustled and got two assists in this game. Robbie Pilgrim and Mike Walinga were rewarded for their two way effort with assists on Markham's goal.

The final game was a 3-0 loss to Parry Sound.

Goaltenders John Moon and Geoff Beauparlant played well to limit the other teams to six goals in three games. Credit for good defensive work goes to Corney, Andy Kerslake, Trevor Crane and Ken Armstrong.

Tournament organizers awarded MVP's in each game and the winners for Georgetown were Trevor Crane, Dave Doole and Sean Peasgood.

Industrial Curling

Dead Enders finally win

It was bound to happen, but the question was when and against whom. The Dead Enders, the Industrial League's newest team, won their first game of the season on Thursday.

It was long in coming, but improvement could be seen in its rusty crew as time progressed. Their victims were The Senators, a team that had been steamrolling along in the second row.

The key to their win was the very thing that had plagued them - giving up a big end. In this game, the big end was the fourth. The points given up were five, but it was the Bill Briggs led Senators doing the giving, and it was too much from which to come back. The final tally was a 10-5 count.

While the aforementioned game was the toast of the evening, indeed it was not the only interesting outcome on this last day of February. Two other underdogs showed their stuff as well. Dr. Bob Hirst led Lopers' Swimmers' squad metaphorically pulled the teeth out of the second place Hog Liners. Out of his dentist's garb and into his Lopers pink, Dr. Bob yanked end after end from his prey. By the close, the Hog Liners had squealed at the loss of six ends and a final tally of 8-3.

The other underdog win was by the upstart Kendale Eight Enders over the Fit-As-A-Fiddles. This match-up, however, was not one where anybody got worked over.

It was very closely played and as the saying quite often goes, it wasn't over until it was over. Single points were taken in six of eight ends. The other two were blanked.

Heading home it was a 3-2 advantage on the scoreboard for Scott Russell's Eight Enders, but the important last shot advantage was held by Ken Irwin's WTBSers. As the final end progressed, the Kendale rink was running into problems trying to find a place to hide a rock for the steal.

That last pressure shot with all of the marbles on the table, became the one they were looking for. Irwin missed and the steal was on. Eight Enders celebrated a 4-2 dog fight win.

On this night of action-packed curling at the North Halton Club, there was more curling to take in. With Dave Ashbee in the dining room at a shareholder's meeting, his JAWS squad sought relief from Tom Shillington as they were up against the first place Dunlop Insurance Rockers rink.

Both sides were generally at their sharpest from first rocks. The Rockers would take a lead and JAWS would come back. Three times this happened, and after seven ends of play, it was a tied game, with the count at 7-7.

The last advantage was in the hands of the Rockers skip Barry Dunlop, who was playing his best game since his win at the Royal Mortgage Service's spiel in Orangeville in mid-January.

Dunlop's last rock wasn't needed, however, as Phil Jones failed to dig out the counter with his final throw. The Rockers stay in first place with his 8-7 finish.

In other pairings, Ralph Vincent skipped the Bill Smith Auto Wingnuts to a commanding 12-2 win over the Central Box team, the Boxers. Automatons dominated the Challengers, taking their game by a 12-4 count.

Kendale Hackers also racked up a dozen points as they downed The Norval Boys by 12-5. Julian Lipkowiak went one better with his La Guys rink, manhandling the Sign Shoppe Sliders 13-6.

To start the March slate of games off, all who are interested can come out to see the following pairings for Thursday, March 7th:

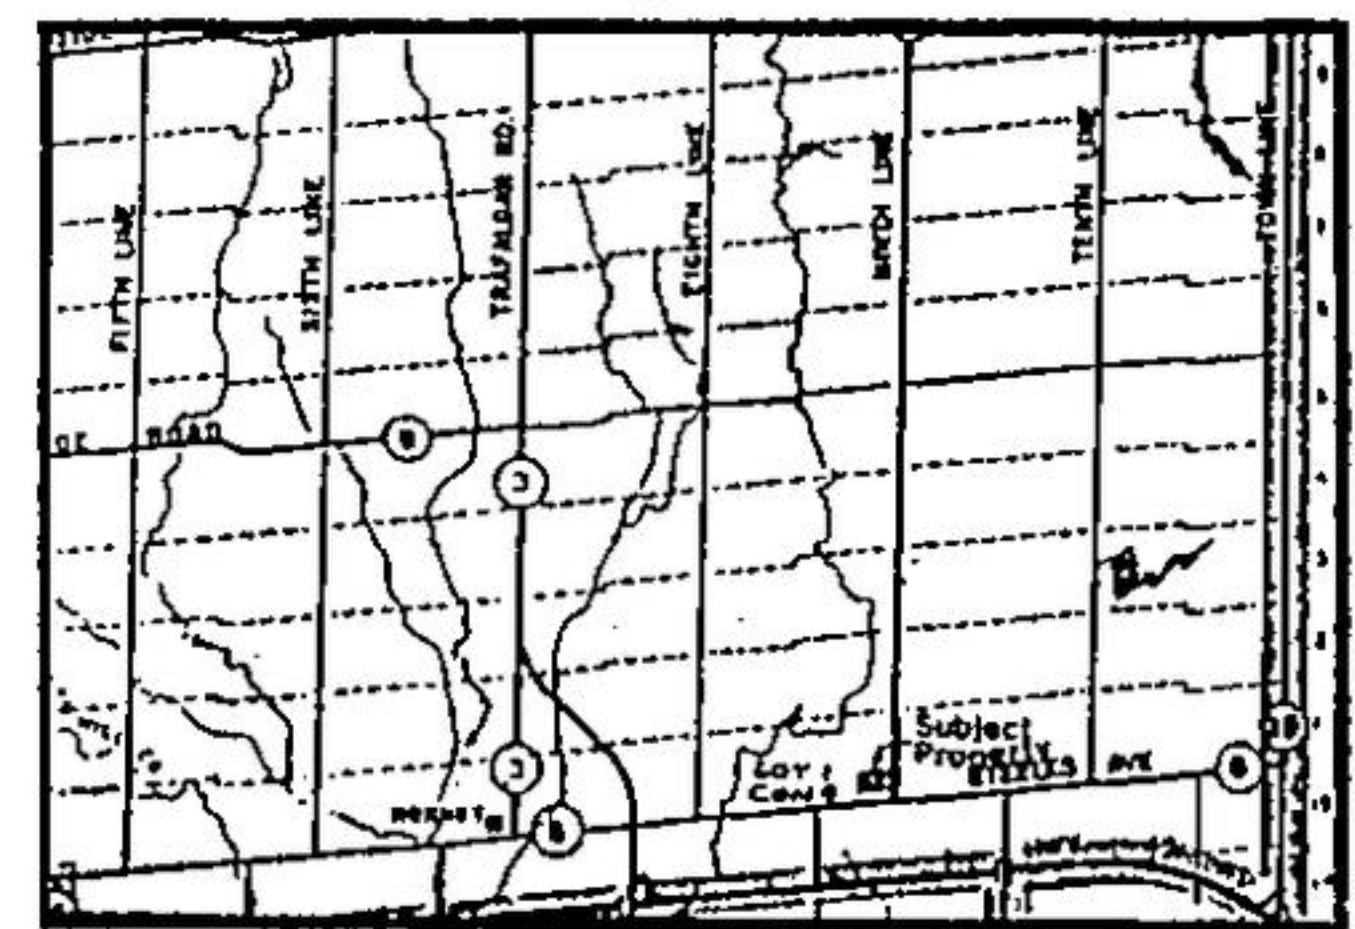

At 6:45 p.m. - Hog Liners vs. Fit-As-A-Fiddle, The Sign Shoppe Sliders vs. JAWS, The Boxers vs. Dead Enders, Bill Smith Auto Wingnuts vs. The Senators.

At 9:00 p.m. - Lopers Swimmers vs. Kendale Eight Enders, La Guys vs. Dunlop Insurance Rockers, The Automatons vs. The Norval Boys, Challengers vs. Kendale Hackers.
