Welcome Wagon Fashion Show

Ahhhh, the perfect bride. That's what probably ran through the minds of the brides to be attending Sunday's Welcome Wagon-sponsored Bridal Party at the John Elliott Theatre when they first laid eyes on this magnificent bridal gown provided by Oakville-based Charlie Bridal Salon. (Herald photo)

Students earn top honors

Three students from Halton Hill's Catholic schools earned top honors in the Halton Roman Catholic School Board Science Fair March 2 at Notre Dame Secondary School in Burlington.

A total of 250 projects were entered from all the elementary and secondary schools of the board.

Sarah McDonald of St. Francis of Assisi School won first place in the physical science, junior division. Her project was about gel and gum.

In the biological science, junior division, Scott Lahey of St. Francis of Assisi School won second place for his project on sewage plant effectiveness.

The other Halton Hills winner was Kelly McLean of St. Josephs School for her project on a futuristic water colony in the physical science, junior division.
