

Park School cares

Cuddly Teddy bears and comfortable pillows were donated to Georgetown and District Memorial Hospital by the students of Park Public School, represented by principal Rick Nodwell (right). Accepting the gifts are the hospital's executive director, John Oliver (left) and nurse and parent Jennifer Page.

The gifts were actually prizes Park students won for high cookie sales in a fundraising campaign but the students opted to donate the prizes to the hospital instead of keeping them. (Herald photo)

Billy Rundle, Doug Mitchell and Shirley Thompson happily accepted a stereo, walkman, camera, soccer balls and flashlights that Park Public School donated to the North Halton Association for the Developmentally Handicapped. The items were actually prizes the students won for selling cookies but instead of keeping them for themselves, the students opted to donate the gifts. Also in the picture is Park School principal Rick Nodwell (back, centre) and Community Relations co-ordinator for the association, Anne Sidebottom (back, right). (Herald photo)
