

Artisans Sale

Georgetown resident Una O'Callaghan (foreground) and Frank Anthony (background), also from Georgetown, were two of the many who ventured to the Credit Valley Artisans Cottage in Cedarvale Park Saturday for the group's garage sale. The artisans were raising money to help pay for the cottages operating costs. (Herald photo)

New Open Door Director

Georgetown's teen drop-in centre, Open Door, has a new Executive Director who is eager to open the centre's doors even wider.

Ann Scheepers-Nevins, from Acton, took over the position April 2 after spending two weeks learning the ropes with the centre's past Executive Director, Vanessa Bell-Smith.

Ms. Scheepers-Nevins said her experience working with troubled and often violent boys in an Uxbridge Training School for six years has given her the strength and training to be an asset to Open Door.

"I have a lot I can offer, like kindness," she said.

Having a BA in psychology from Western University in London and raising three stepchildren over the past five years given her additional knowledge and experience to deal with teenage issues and problems.

In the two weeks she's been involved with the centre, she's found a lot of helpful and friendly people and was relieved to find a well of support for Open Door.

She especially credits Lenny Carboni and Dee Dee Haynes for their support.

As Executive Director, Ms. Scheepers-Nevins job will include planning activities and programs for the centre and making speeches to service clubs.
