Church crafts sale

By ROSE STARRATT
Herald Special

Big Brothers of Halton has been forced to stop accepting applications for new Little Brothers in the Milton/Georgetown/Acton area. This is because of the lack of men willing to become Big Brothers.

"Currently, we have 38 Little Brothers on our waiting list for the area. One boy has waited for over a year," said Evelyn Gransaul, executive director of Big Brothers. "And with an average of just one new Big Brother coming in ever three months, there is no way we can increase the case load. It would be unfair to raise the hopes of these boys and not be able to fulfill our promise."

Big Brothers matches men of good moral character over the age of eighteen, to father absent boys between the ages of six and sixteen. "No, they don't have to be saints but they must be able to give six references including a police check, medical certificate, work reference plus one from a relative and two from friends."

While there are several reasons why these boys don't have a positive male role model, the result is always the same. Loneliness, frustration and longing. So, the most important items a Big Brother can bring to the relationship is commitment, companionship, friendship and time.

Mrs. Gransaul adds, "There are many men in the Halton community who meet these requirements but for some reason they don't come forward. We charge no fees or dues and the Big Brother does not have to spend money. The idea is time. We need men who have four hours a week to devote to his Little Brother.

"The interests of the boys are varied so great care is taken to form a match that is compatible. Some Little Brothers want a fast game of 21 in the court while another might be curious as to how a new computer program works. Whatever the interests, there is someone out there to match them. If they would just come forward!"

If you believe you are Big Brother material or even if you know of someone who would make a wonderful Big Brother, then please, call the Big Brother office at 847-7267 or 876-4756.

Don't hesitate. We need you today. The boys we nurture today are the fine men of our tomorrow.

Let's not go out tonight dear, why not call Country Lane, they will deliver our movies as well as pop, chips & popcorn.
