Glen residents are concerned

Although Glen Williams residents attending a public meeting Monday over a development proposal didn't oppose the application outright, they expressed concern their water quality and quantity could be jeopardized by the project.

The proposal calls for 30 homes, each valued at approximately $300,000, to be built east of the Ninth Line, north of the Credit River and west of the Tenth Line.

Those attending wanted assurances from the Town that before approval is granted, if at all, the project wouldn't deplete their well water source or the water quality.

Town Planner, Ian Keith, assured the residents the project's approval would be on condition that Glen Williams first be hooked up to municipal water.

One Glen Williams resident told councillors how his water supply has decreased on a yearly basis for the past 18 years. He hasn't been able to use the dishwasher for the past three years, his shower cuts out regularly and he doesn't always have enough water to do his laundry.

Mr. Keith told residents the hydrogeological study submitted by the applicant raises concern about the impact of the development on water supply and that is why the developer will have to build a water main on Tweedle Street in Glen Williams.

Town planning staff will now write a report incorporating the concerns raised by the residents and report back to Town council with a recommendation to either approve or deny the application.

Silver Creek project

Halton Hills Council will decide this Monday if the Isaac Walton Fly Fisherman Club in Georgetown can rehabilitate Silver Creek in Cedarvale Park.

Although every supportive of the project, Town councillors decided Monday during a public meeting that Town Recreation and Parks Department first meet with club representatives to ensure staff has no objection to any aspects of the project.

The club refers to the project as "putting the lustre back in Silver Creek".

The project's objectives include stabilizing bank erosion, preventing downstream sediment loading and providing an education centre for the general public to explain the benefits of stream rehabilitation projects.

Representatives for North Halton MPP Noel Duignan and the ratepayers group, RAIDD (Residents Active in Development Decisions) spoke in favor of the rehabilitation project.

Kingsmill questions

Georgetown resident Robert Davies, appearing before General Committee Monday, inquired if the Kingsmill Development project off Mountainview Road south was on schedule. Committee is comprised of Town councillors.

Mr. Davies was appearing on behalf of those people who have purchased one of the Town houses in the development project.

Town Engineer Bob Austin told councillors that to date no other projects are holding back the construction schedule. People are slated to move into the town houses during the beginning of November.

The project that could eventually hold up the construction schedule is the planned expansion of Maple Avenue. Mr. Austin met with representatives from the province's Ministry of the Environment yesterday (Tuesday) to discuss environmental concerns raised over the expansion proposal. Only if the MOE has problems with the expansion plan could the schedule be put back, he said.

The meetings outcome was unavailable at press time.

Garage site deferred

Town General Committee recommended Monday that final consideration of a proposal to construct a 10,000 square foot garage to be located off Trafalgar Road south of Sideroad 15 be deferred.

After hearing from local lawyer, Bert Arnold, the applicants representative, councillors requested staff meet with the applicants to discuss if and how adequate types of screening of the project could be provided.

According to a staff report, screening methods such as setbacks and berming of landscaping are necessary to bring the project in conformity with the surrounding land uses. At present, that information has yet to be provided, the report states.

Mr. Arnold said the applicant will be able to provide the necessary topographical information within two weeks.

Newton Glassman representing four landowners directly opposite the site, urged councillors to deny the application because the project changes the residential character of the area.

Dump protest

Mayor Russ Miller informed all councillors of a protest organized by local environmental group Protect Our Water Environmental Resources (P.O.W.E.R.) for May 15 at Queen's Park in Toronto to protest the Acton dump proposal.

ACTON QUARRY LANDFILL

THE Honourable Ruth Grier
c/o Noel Duignan
Room 469, The East Wing
Legislative Building
Queens Park, Toronto
Ontario M7A 1A2

Dear Ms. Grier,

re Acton Quarry Landfill

The Region of Halton, The Town of Halton Hills and P.O.W.E.R. agree that the Environmental Assessment Process has not been properly followed.

It is required under the act that RSI fully examine alternative sites. They have not done this, therefore the process has been abused.

Based on this alone, you, as the minister are required to rule that the environmental assessment document is not complete.

We are being taxed to death to oppose RSI's application, $550,000.00 so far. Should this application go to an environmental hearing it could cost us millions. We believe this application interferes with our quiet enjoyment and democratic rights.

Yours very sincerely,

Poster contest winner

Acton resident Tara Goulding, 8, was awarded with a trophy Saturday by owners of Acton's Modern Concepts, The Store, in recognition of winning the "business" poster contest. The contest's theme was "Protection of the Environment". Saturday also marked the official opening of the Mill Street environmental consulting business. Those on hand to present Tara with her prize included (left to right) Stephen Ball (part owner), Town Mayor Russ Miller and Elaine Fitzpatrick (part store owner) and Town of Halton Hills Mayor Russ Miller is holding a mug presented to him by the store's owners in recognition of the need for everybody to protect the Town's water.
