

Community in Focus

Go fly a kite

With little wind, trying to get a kite flying wasn't an easy task for Park Public students competing in the school's kite competition Wednesday, but Shaunna Fedora (front, left) and her partner, Amy

Palmer (front, right) had their self-made kites in the air for a few minutes while other students kept trying. (Herald photo)

Stream project results

Acton Public School Trustee Arlene Bruce (left) helps Robert Little Public School Grade five student Kirsten Viel hold up the results of a stream project. Kirsten and three other students completed as part of the school's "Little Inspires Fondness for the Environment (L.I.F.E.)" Open House held Wednesday at the school. An unidentified student is seen poking his head from outside the classroom door, obviously very keen to know about the environment-related projects. (Herald photo)

Students accompany dignitaries

Halton Regional Chairman Peter Pomeroy (far left) and Acton Councillor Gerald Rennie (far right) were just two of the several dignitaries that attended the "Little Inspires Fondness for the Environment (L.I.F.E.)" Open House put on by students at

Robert Little School in Acton Wednesday. Students Chris Yeatman and Debbie Mashinter were assigned to Chairman Pomeroy and Coun. Rennie respectively to show them the different student projects on display at the school. (Herald photo)

Kinsmen car

Arlene MacIver (in car) and her husband Ian (middle) picked up the 1991 Toyota Corolla from Carman Widdess (left), manager of the Georgetown Toyota dealership Wednesday. The MacIver's purchased the car over the phone during the Kinsmen's TV Auction held May 6, where Kinsmen raised $6,000, said Kinsmen member Bruce MacLean (right). (Herald photo)

Fly like an eagle

As a breeze caught the material of this kite, Shaunna Fedora ran with her unseen partner, Amy Palmer to try and get the kite in the air during Park Public School's Kite Flying competition Wednesday. (Herald photo)