

Community in Focus

Pony ride

One of the most popular events at St. Francis School's fun day on Saturday was the pony ride. Amy Husar enjoyed her trip around the school yard, guided by Jack Zitman. The fun day was organized by the school's parent-teacher association. (Herald photo)

Norval picnic

Several local residents gathered to have a family church picnic at the Norval Community Centre on Sunday. Though the weather was rainy, preventing outdoor activities, the group still managed to have a good time, especially when it came time for desert.

Pictured here waiting for the tarts to be served by Pat Evans are (left to right) Tommy Evans, David Bryce, Ashleigh Dunlop and Kenny Bryce. (Herald photo)

Hospital bazaar

Stein Ligerink holds up some hand-crafted finger puppets that she was selling at the Georgetown Hospital's spring bazaar on Saturday. Ligerink said the crafts she had were all made by people in the third world, who would receive most of the proceeds from the sale. (Herald photo)

Bike-a-Thon

The Halton Hills Bike-a-Thon, organized by the North Halton Association for the Developmentally Handicapped, got underway at Ollie's Cycle on a wet Sunday morning. Funds raised from the event, which wound its way through Georgetown to Cedarvale Park, are being used to help support the NHADH. (Herald photo)

Sponge bath

Adam Walsh got a golden opportunity to get away with some mischief at St. Francis School's fun day on Saturday. At the sponge toss, Walsh's target was none other than his principal, Arlene McCarthy. (Herald photo)

Diabetes executive

The executive of the newly formed Georgetown-Halton Hills chapter of the Canadian Diabetes Association met Thursday night to plan the association's goals. Executive members include; (back row, left to right) Jim Akers, Don Coglin and Donna

Harden, all directors and (front row, left to right) Barbara Libby, secretary; Lisa Burrows, president; and Brenda Kuusisto, treasurer. (Herald photo)