Legion continues Plymouth tradition

By LAURAINE JACK Herald Special

On May 24, 30 members of Branch 120 of the Royal Canadian Legion arrived at Plymouth, Mass. to renew old friendships and make new ones.

This was the 10th anniversary of this event. Every year Branch 120 has marched in the Bourne military parade and also the Plymouth Memorial parade.

The weekend was hectic but a very enjoyable one starting with a rembrance dinner to honor those who had passed away. The ceremony was full of emotion and it was a chance to reflect on the sacrifices that people have made all over the world so we can live in freedom. I can only say that I felt very proud to be a Canadian and also take pride in the fact that Canadians will always stand up for democracy and a better way of life for everyone in this world.

On Saturday afternoon many of us went shopping while others figured out how to get it all home without renting a U-Haul.

Saturday night another fabulous dinner was held and also several members of Branch 120 put on a humorous skit depicting what actually happened when the Pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock.

There were many people with tears in their eyes because the laughing was so hard.

On Sunday we were up early to march at the Bourne National cemetary. The members were looking very sharp and they did Branch 120 proud. The same thing could be said about Monday's parade in Plymouth.

It was hard to say goodbye to our friends of Post 40 but we look forward to their arrival to march with Branch 120 at the Warriors day parade held every year at the C.N.E. in August.
