

Painting for Canada

Canada Day celebrations in Glen Williams Monday meant a variety of children's activities including painting. Windsor resident Heather Soulliere, 5, who was visiting her aunt in Glen Williams Monday, was one of several children who decided to paint a picture about Canada's birthday. (Herald photo)

Made in Canada

Judging from this float seen Monday during the Glen Williams Canada Day parade the Canadian automobile industry can rest assured the people of Glen Williams support Canadian-made cars. (Herald photo)

Falcon alert

Glen Williams Falconer Ulrich Watermann showed several types of his falcons including this Perigrine Falcon during Canada Day celebrations in Glen Williams Monday. (Herald photo)

A song for Canada

Glen Williams resident Roger Temple leads the public and local dignitaries in a resounding rendition of Canada's national anthem Monday during the opening ceremonies of the Glen Williams Canada Day Celebration. (Herald photo)

Citizen of the Year

Glen Williams Citizen of the Year for 1991, Norm McGowan, (left) holds up a wooden carving of a mallard duck presented to him Monday during the opening ceremonies of the hamlet's Canada Day celebrations, after being presented with the special award by Halton Hills Publisher Bob Malcolmson. The Herald sponsored this year's awards. (Herald photo)