Halton Regional Police Officers were led on a high-speed chase by a Rockwood man July 2 who was later charged with dangerous driving. Police first observed the suspect passing several cars at a high rate of speed on an 'S' turn with oncoming traffic on Hwy. 7 west of the 5th Line. The officers had just pulled their cruiser onto Hwy. 7 but were forced off the road by the speeding 1979 Ford Custom. The officers turned around and gave chase as the driver raced to Rockwood where he was observed stopping in a Rockwood subdivision. When the officers approached, the man attempted to drive away but rode up a steep embankment and almost rolled his car. The suspect fled on foot and police weren't able to catch him. He was later apprehended and charged with dangerous driving.

a cash register where it was rung through as only $21.40 on a manual receipt. No money was received for the purchase. Both women will appear in Milton Court August 12.

Property owners litter-bit lax

Two Halton Hills property owners were charged $500 and $200 respectively Thursday during a Milton court hearing for contravening the Town's Littering Bylaw, said Town Bylaw Enforcement Officer Bob Ustrzycki following the hearing.

The numbered company 747359 Ontario Limited was charged $500 for accumulating used tires on its Winston Churchill property in Norval, while Mississauga resident Ivo Jolic was charged $200 for storing used household appliances, farming equipment, and lumber on his property at 28 Adamson Street in Norval.

Mr. Ustrzycki said the Town had tried for the past three months to have the numbered company clean up the property but to no avail.

There is an indication that people, unknown to the property owners were dumping tires. However, the responsibility for clean up lies with the owner, he said.

"We, (the Town), don't want a tire fire to break out," said Mr. Ustrzycki.

"The owners were given a reasonable amount of time to clean up the property and take measures to prevent people from gaining access to the property but they did nothing."

No representatives for the numbered company attended the hearing.

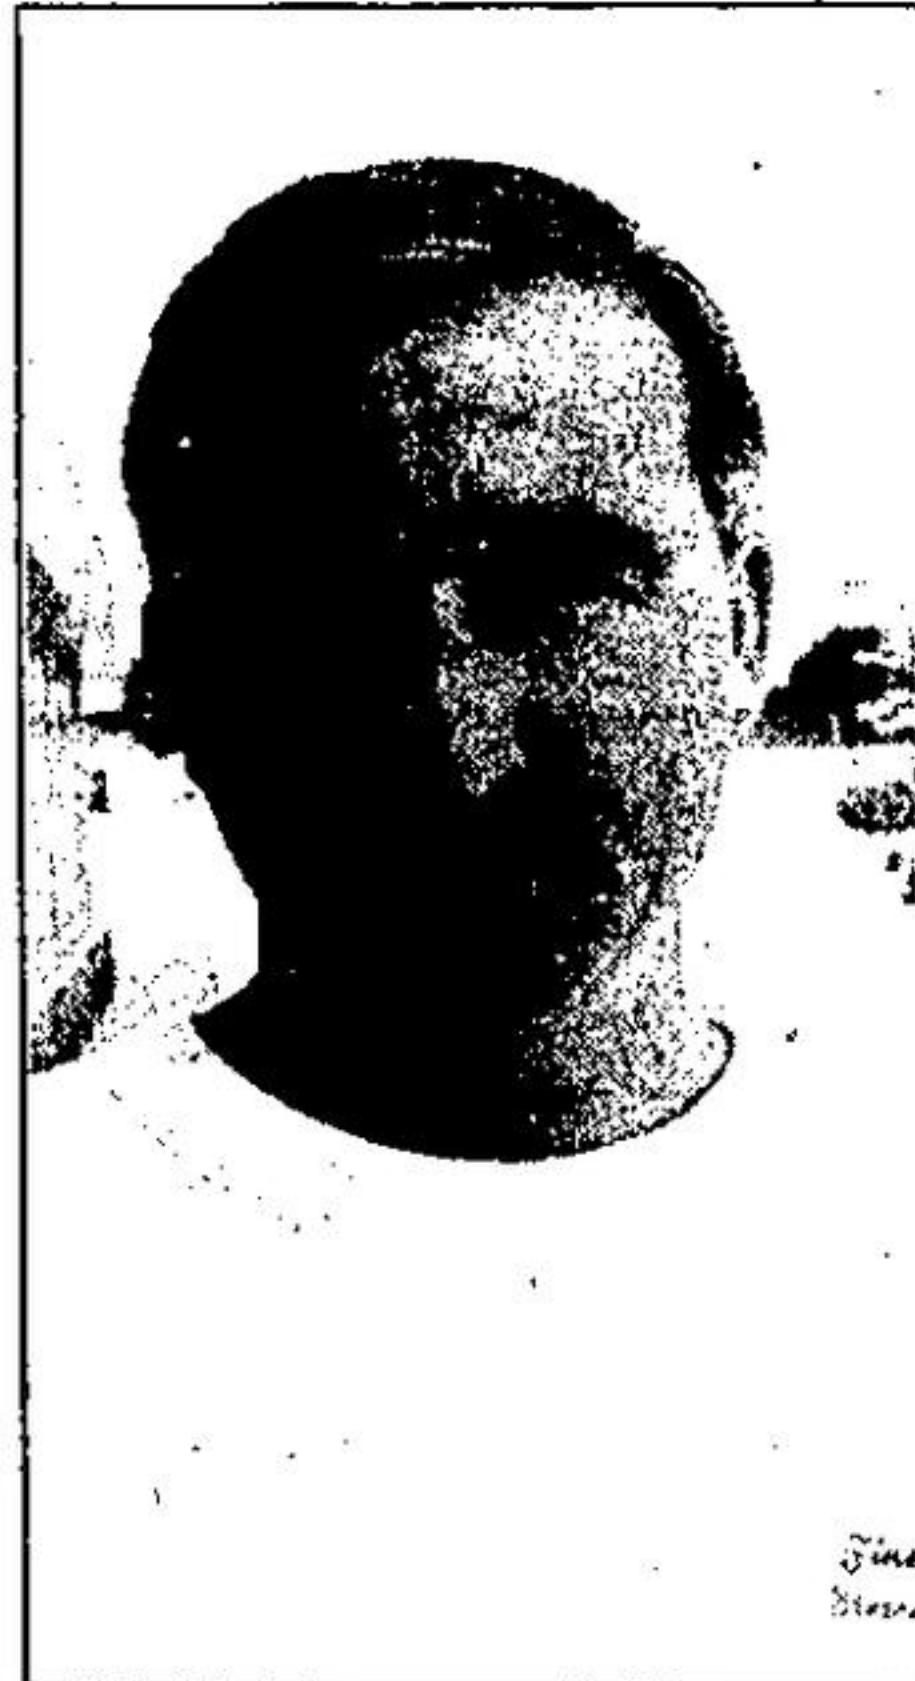

In the case of Mr. Jolic, Mr. Ustrzycki said he was also given a reasonable amount of time to clean up the property before charges were laid.

Mr. Jolic couldn't be reached for comment at press time.

Rating the Blue Jays

Kevin Harrison, Georgetown: "They are looking very strong this year. It was a good trade for them to get Tom Candiotti. At this point, it looks as though they have an excellent chance of winning their division."

Doug Poyntz, Georgetown: "Their acquisition of new players was very odd. They have a strong bullpen and if Dave Stieb can come back soon, they stand an excellent chance of winning."

Lynda House, Norval: "I think they are a very good team. I went to see them play just last Saturday. They will probably win."

Odd job blitz planned

By LISA BOONSTOPPEL-POT

On July 19, the Canada Employment Centre for students will close. Before it does, however, centre supervisors are going on an odd job blitz.

Supervisor Chris Fernandes, wants to make sure as many students make money this summer as possible so he's started the odd job squad, a program matching jobless students to odd jobs.

"We get at least one call a day from householders and businessmen just needing a helpful hand for a day or week," said Mr. Fernandes. "People want someone to babysit, paint their fence or help move things around."

He's made a special board, listing the odd jobs in the centre and compiled a list of students who are willing and able to work with little notice for a day here and there.

"If someone calls, we can usually get them a person that day," said Mr. Fernandes. "We have a couple of pages of names of students looking to make extra money with the odd jobs."

To get on the odd job squad, students can call the office at 877-7751 or visit the office at 232 Guelph St. between 8:30 and 4:30 during the week.

Mr. Fernandes said although businesses are still required to pay minimum wage for odd jobs, householders aren't. "We suggest that householders offer a lump sum for the work they want done or offer competitive wages so more students will be interested," he said.

For students still hoping to get a fulltime summer job, there are approximately 25 regular job openings available. A description of the job and what it pays is pinned up on the job search board at the centre.

Since the centre opened in late April, staff have been able to provide 130 students with summer jobs. The figure is significantly lower than last year's figure of approximately 160 jobs filled, but Mr. Fernandes said that's because there were fewer jobs available and some students held out because wages were lower.

Besides job placement, the centre offers career counselling and job searching technique courses to students, which were popular with students, said Mr. Fernandes.

Personally, Mr. Fernandes said he's found working at the centre an "excellent opportunity. I got a broad range of experience in dealing with the media and the public which will aid me in my next job."

After the centre closes, Mr. Fernandes will start his new job as an information officer with Metro Toronto's Department of Public Works.

Student Placement Officer, Nancy Albers, of Georgetown, has also found working at the centre a rewarding experience.

"I learned a lot in respect to job searching and how to make contacts in the community," she said. "What I learned here will help me when I graduate from university."
