

Local fall fairs fast approaching

The 145th Annual Georgetown Fall Fair and the 78th Annual Acton Fall Fair are fast approaching and for those people who are interested in entering some of the contests that the two events offer should turn their entries in on time.

The Georgetown and Acton

Fall Fairs have each issued a program of their respective events and contests as well as the names and numbers of the people running the contests.

The Georgetown Fall Fair is set to take place on Sept. 6, 7, 8 while the Acton Fall Fair occurs on Sept. 13, 14 and 15.

Some of the contests that will be a part of each of the fairs are as follows: a contest involving the best vegetables (organizer in Georgetown is Isla Allison, 877-6085; in Acton call Keith Aitken (519) 856-9823).

There will be a contest involving baking, or domestic science as it is sometimes called. Interested contestants of these events should call Marguerite French in Georgetown at 877-3918, or Mrs. C. Cobham in Acton at 853-2080.

For those people with a knack for gardening there will be a contest to decide just who grows the best plants and flowers in the Region. For more information you can contact Helen Pinkney in Georgetown at 877-8677 or Mrs. J. Dempsey in Acton at 853-4011.

There will be many more contests to enter at the Fall Fairs in almost every category, so very few people will be left out in the cold come harvest time. For more information on Acton and Georgetown Fall Fairs, contact the Acton Agricultural Society at 878-1656, and Jesse Milton at 877-2557 respectively.

4-H presentations
