New sign

Graham Gove takes a satisfied last glance after hanging a new and improved sign for his establishment - The Copper Kettle Pub - a British pub/restaurant in the Glen Williams area of Georgetown. The pub features an outdoor patio, air conditioned dining room, and live entertainment every Wednesday evening from eight to midnight with a local Cheltenham group called Irish Fusion Trio.

New Rotary member

Rotary Club District Governor Don Watkins was on hand Monday evening to officially induct new member Steve Hay into the Georgetown Rotary Club. During the beginning of each new Rotary year, which starts in July, the District Governor inducts one new member in each of the clubs in his district. Mr. Hay is a bank manager at the Georgetown Royal Bank. (From left to right), Georgetown Club President Barry Timleck, new member Steve Hay, and District Governor Don Watkins.

On the lake

Two Georgetown residents found one way to try and stay cool on a hot Saturday afternoon was to take a canoe out on Fairy Lake in Acton. Steve DeForest and his son Kyle are shown just beginning their first tour of the lake.

Rolling for charity

M and M Pro Sports raised $224 for the Kidney Foundation of Canada on Friday by donating the day's rental fees of Rollerblade In-Line Skates. Some of the people involved in the event included, back row, left to right, Heather MacKinnon of M and M Pro Sports, Rollerblade representative Michael Dingman and M and M Pro Sports co-owner Mike Marcolini. Front row, left to right, are Melanie and Sue Luciani, both who are kidney recipients and Michael Tuney who was trying out the skates.

Faster than a

Two-year-old Tyler Tombs may have shorter legs than his mom Cathy but with his new battery-powered four-wheeler, he's the quicker one when it comes to picking up the daily mail. The Tombs family live just outside Stewarttown on Trafalgar Road and have been chasing their son around for days since he got the speedy bike for a birthday present.
