Two town mice enjoy their summer vacation

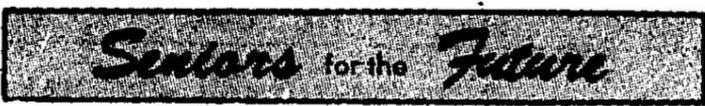

By GEORGE and FLORENCE BAKER

Usually when one reads about a holiday the writer has taken, they speak of far-away exotic places. Not so in this case.

This is the tale of two town mice who spent their vacation just outside the "Metropolis of Mount Forest". This did not take place at a scenic northern lake, not a sea-side resort hotel with all the toys. This was spent on 4.4 acres of land, partially covered by two huge gardens. Guarding this property is a big Golden Retriever, two barn cats and three horses. That is country!

Truth is, our daughter wanted a week away from picking, freezing and preserving beans, corn, tomatoes, etc. This was followed closely by a bumper crop of raspberries.

Then there was the caring for six beehives inhabited by what must be the most industrious bees on God's green earth. Better than 600 lbs. of honey! No wonder those little rascals can be a little on the short-tempered side at times.

As for Jessie, the retriever, she is queen of all she surveys. She starts her day off quite early in the morning by running down to the horses, giving them a blast and telling them she is around. She then ignores them for the rest of the day. This is followed by a complete round of the premises and check on the neighbors. If there is no recognition there, no pat on the heat, - a sock or towel, etc. is carried off. Her attention then is centred on groundhog holes.

No one has told her they may have six-bolt holes, so she sits for hours staring and staring.

Now, as to the so-called "barn cats". The two of them are on duty only after dark, when they have to be forcibly ejected from the house, having enjoyed the day sleeping on the water-bed.

Someone once said a horse has the brain of a walnut. Some walnut! Those three beautiful mares belong to a friend of our daughter's, who pastures them on the back lot. Those horses, we are sure, can tell the time. Around 4:30 p.m. they are nowhere in sight. However at 5:00 p.m. there they are standing at the fence, three pairs of eyes watching and waiting. It's feed time! If they see no aciton at the house and no one appears to be heading their way, there is a great deal of assorted sounds, such as blowing, snorting and stamping.

I should perhaps mention that "our luggage" included preserving jars, recipes and artist's supplies. These were to be priorities to fill our days. I'm afraid these priorities dropped down low on our list of things to see and do. Well, one can always blame this procrastination on "our age". Be that as it may, we decided there was always tomorrow. However, after spending many enjoyable hours visiting with friends who came up from Georgetown, and with friends who have moved to that area, we realized that tomorrow was creeping up on us.

Goodness, we hadn't even taken a tour of the surrounding country with all the quaint little towns. Some of these we had never heard about. This just had to be included in our tomorrow. What a delightful day we had on our trip around "the Bruce" and area. All the real biggies like Cargill, Carlsruhe, Neustadt and Chepstow. We saw them all. By the way, if you are travelling through Walkerton, try to stop at "The Donut Shop." They serve wonderful coffee and m.m., good fattening doughnuts! All in all, it was a happy week. It took us back to when we were kids returning to school in September. Remember we were always asked to write on "What I Did On My Vacation." It was nice.

Successful bake sale

The Georgetown and District Seniors Association held a very successful Bake Sale at the Fall Fair.

On behalf of the G.D.S.A., the Fundraising Committee Chairperson, Seina Van Hoekelen, would like to thank all who participated: The Sons of Scotland for the use of the booth; The Royal Bank for their contributions; the Telephone Committee for all the hours they spent on the phone requesting baking; for the bakers who answered the call; the crews who stood in the heat and sold all the baking; and those who put up the booth and helped to clean up after.

A Raffle was also held and the winning tickets were drawn on Sunday afternoon: 1st Prize, a Panasonic radio was won by Marjorie Tutty, no. 383. 2nd Prize, a quilt, was on by B. Newman, no. 285. 3rd Prize, cosmetics, was won by Leroy Keller, no. 395. To those who took care of the raffle and sold tickets, Seina also extends thanks. It was a job well done.

We would like to remind you all of the Craft Sale on Nov. 2. Get out your needles and wool or whatever and start stitching.
