Historic plaque in Norval

By LISA BOONSTOPPEL-POT The Herald

Come Oct. 27, the history of Norval will be carved in stone thanks to the efforts of the Norval Community Association.

For over a year, the 100-member association which has existed since 1975, has been striving to establish a permanent reminder indicating Norvals's role in the history of Esquesing Township.

"Norval was one of the first settled communities in Esquesing," said Kathy Gastle, a member of the Norval Community Association (NCA). "The community has considered erecting a plaque for a long time but no one ever, took the initiative."

That's when the NCA sprang into action and began fundraising to cover the costs of creating a plaque.

Kathy Gastle, member of the Norval Community Association and Dorothy McLean, curator of the Tweedsmuir History book for the Norval Women's Institute sit, on the rock that will record Norval's history of ages past. The Norval Community Association has created a plaque highlighting the history of the community and it will be bolted onto this ick located at Hwy 7 and Noble Rd. A special ceremony will be held oct. 27 at 2:30 p.m. to unveil the plaque and to commemorate the Women's Institutes' 85th birthday. (Herald Photo)

to bronze a summary of the history of the town onto a plaque which will be bolted to a stone boulder at Hwy 7 and Noble Rd. this Sunday at 2:30

The plaque itself will highlight the man who first settled in the area, a Loyalist named Alexander McNab; how the land for the town was purchased from a Missisauga Indian Tribe in 1818; how by 1950 the town had a woollen mill, saw mill, hotels, ashery, bakery, harness shop, carriage works, cooper shop, brass foundry, bakery, general store and three churches. It will also reveal the town's first road was made of planks and appropriately named the Plank Rd., running from Toronto to Guelph.

Ms. Gastle said the association deliberately left out the names of famous people who have lived in Norval due to space and cost. She hopes someday a plaque listing more of Norval's history will be created.

Along with the unveiling of the plaque, the Norval Women's Institute will celebrate their 85th anniversary. They'll be commemorating the birthday by planting a maple tree at the site of the unveiling.

It's appropriate that the unveiling and birthday will be celebrated together since the Women's Institute has long been a keeper of history with their Tweedsmuir History Books.

Sheridan Nurseries has also donated shrubs and Dominion seed has donated bulbs for the site. The plaque is being made by Art Cast of Georgetown.

After the unveiling and treeplanting, a celebration will be held in St. Pauls' Parish Hall where the Tweedsmuir History Books (all five) will be on display. Also at the hall, children can participate in a hand-colored poster contest on Norval past and present and in a best pre-1900 pioneer costume contest.
