

Caring blood donor

Tracey Veltman (right), an O.A.C. student at GDHS, is watched carefully by clinic manager Pat Leen while she gave blood Dec. 4 at GDHS during the school's annual Blood Donor Clinic. (Herald Photo)

Grand Opening

Georgetown Paper Factory owners Bobbie Bleler (left) and Bob Bleler (right) recently added a new 'Food Service and Smallwares' section to their store. Halton Hills Mayor Russ Miller is pictured above with the couple during the ribbon cutting ceremony Thursday morning. (Herald Photo)

Dying daphnia

Barbara Coxe, a Grade 10 student at Acton High School looks through a microscope at dying daphnia she exposed to car exhaust pollution. How daphnia (water fleas) react to pollution was the basis of her science experiment on display on the school's Science Exposition Wednesday. Barbara found even at very low levels of pollution, the daphnia would die. (Herald by Lisa Boonstoppel-Pot)

Decorating the tree

Glen Williams residents Jill Scott, (left), and Marie Beaumont add some color to the Glen

Williams Town Hall Christmas tree at a holiday party Friday evening. (Herald Photo)

Cub invested

Cub Eric King was invested on Thursday, Nov. 28 by Scouter Jean Layman and Cubmaster Ken Nokes, 1st Georgetown Cub Pack of St. John's United Church.

Pictured above, Eric is with Big Brother David and his father Bill King. Eric was very pleased to be invested. (Photo submitted)

Purchasing art

Acton residents Simone Bayens and John Klooster, (left), purchased a piece of art work from Forge Gallery's Angus Olive during the gallery's open house Saturday in Terra Cotta. The open house runs until Dec. 22. (Herald Photo)