Website for Mums 'N Chums launched

Kid expert to speak at free Parent Education Night

Acton Parent Education Night will feature a keynote speech from an accomplished speaker on Wednesday, March 31 at McKenzie-Bennett School in Acton.

Michael Reist will speak on "How Boys and Girls Learn Differently" and interactive workshops will include Transitioning to High School, Developmental Milestones for K-3 Children, Raising Emotionally Healthy Children and Cyberbullying.

This free event— held in partnership with the MSB School Council, Halton Regional Health, Halton Parent Education Network and Our Kids Network—is open to all parents in the Georgetown and Acton area. It will begin at 6 p.m.— go to the south end of the school, 69 Acton Blvd.

Limited childcare for children, aged 2 1/2 years to 12, is available but registration in advance is required to reserve spaces courtesy of Acton YMCA Daycare.

For more details, visit the MSB public school website or email msbcouncil@hotmail.com.
