Ariss-Stroh-Wasser to host show for budding young artists

Georgetown artist and teacher Barbara Ariss-Stroh-Wasser will once again host the Ariss-Stroh-Wasser Juried Art Show for Children, in conjunction with her solo exhibition, in the Gallery of the Halton Hills Cultural Centre, June 7 to July 5.

Her theme will be Best Friends—Crossing the fine line.

Materials for the children's contest will be ready for pickup at the Halton Hills Cultural Centre Gallery on and after Wednesday, June 9 during library hours. Other pickup locations will be confirmed and announced. Instruction sheets will be available.

The Best Friends theme can be related to human friends, animal friends, favourite things and activities, or imaginary friends. The creation can include visual art and, or writing (prose or poetry) on a standard size of paper. Parents are allowed to scribe the words and sentences for the very young.

Two new features have been added for this show:

- An exhibit of the original creations from 2009, that were left in Ariss's care. They will be returned to the children when the 2010 show is completed. These pieces will be accompanied by a large photo collage assembled with photos of the creations of 2009.

- Children can also voluntarily submit a second piece of visual art creation on a different background material, in a different size, with the use
