

Jail 'n Bail

At the recent Crime Stoppers of Halton Jail 'n Bail fundraiser, 'Judge' Bryan Lewis helps Sergeant Gary Gold (right) of Crime Stoppers as they book 'Dapper Don' (Christ the King principal Dave De Santis) as he has to wait for someone to bail him out of the jail, which was set up at centre court of Georgetown Market Place.

Fallbrook deferred

Halton Hills council has deferred—yet again—a designation report on Fallbrook Farm.

In June, the Town received a letter from Kate Murray of the North Halton Celtic Historical Society, a re-formed, renamed Friends of the Fallbrook citizens group.

The new organization has developed a work plan that would see the original McClure cabin on the Fallbrook site on 27 Sideroad restored and the later additions on the cabin rebuilt and reused for rental for a caretaker/curator of the property.

The group requested more time to work on their plan, and council concurred, deferring the designation until a September council meeting.

Designation involves a 19th century square log house located within the Silver Creek Conservation Area on 27 Sideroad, as well as the 27 Sideroad stone arch bridge, and McClure mill site.

Risky business

Constable Cynthia Stotz of CN Police Service was among the various emergency services personnel taking part in Risk Watch safety seminars aimed at educating Grade 4 students in safety issues last month at the Gellert Community Centre.
