

We've been with ECEs for 20 years

OSSTF/FEESO has represented Early Childhood Educators in Ontario elementary schools for 20 years. Working with your ECE colleagues has helped us understand your goals, your concerns and the unique role you play in helping children learn through play.

We've negotiated on behalf of ECEs, stood by you in grievances and arbitrations, defended your pension and benefits, and helped you get training to advance your career.

OSSTF/FEESO also represents professionals in all job categories at both elementary and secondary schools. So we understand the importance of working with everyone in the education system, not just teachers.

We believe that this experience and understanding makes OSSTF/FEESO the right choice for ECEs, and many of your colleagues agree.

"Our group of ECEs recently joined OSSTF/FEESO and are so pleased with our decision. OSSTF/FEESO believes in and supports Early Childhood Educators!"

Kerry O'Brien-Macdougall, RECE, Lakehead DSB Public Schools

"OSSTF/FEESO's experience in every job category means that every member gets knowledgeable representation whenever it's needed."

Carlene Ables, RECE, Greater Essex

Noah's Ark sets sail here

After a year of planning, Georgetown Rug Hooking Guild is hosting the Canadian Debut of Noah's Ark, the work of the late Mary Sheppard Burton of Germantown, Maryland. Burton hooked the body of the ark and two of the animals, and the balance of the animals were hooked by various rug hookers across North America. The large three-dimensional work will be unveiled tonight (Tuesday) at 7 p.m. at John Elliott Theatre, then moved into the Gallery to join the balance of the Georgetown Rug Hooking Guild's 2010 show, and will be on display until Sept 18. On hand to set up the ark were (in front, from left) Leonard Feenan of Charles Town, West Virginia, who constructed the frame for Mary's ark, Mary's granddaughter Jennifer Zamora of Frederick, MD, in back left, Barbara Barton, of Bowie, MD, constructed most of the animals, and Georgetown Rug Hooking Guild librarian Jan Lord-Giraldi, who was responsible for having the show brought to Georgetown. When the ark finishes its show in Georgetown, it will be moved to its permanent home at the North American Society Museum in Nova Scotia.
