

taking a series of gardening courses. Larry Alderbert is one of the Society's Master Gardeners. Like other members, Alderbert loves his gardens.

"I was eight years old when I had my first garden," says Alderbert. "When I moved to Georgetown I joined the Society. I love the people and I learn lots from the monthly speakers."

Long-serving members, Margaret and Peter Philpott agree with Alderbert.

"You learn something every time you attend a speakers presentation," says Margaret. The 2010-2011 speakers' series offers a variety of topics ranging from: English gardens, orchids, Japanese garden design, building a rock garden, sustainable gardening to hardy geraniums. There is something for everyone.

You too can help celebrate the 90th anniversary of the Georgetown Horticultural Society by visiting the many gardens throughout George-
