Moon offers help to bladder cancer patients

cer Awareness at Sherwood Park in Toronto beginning at 10 a.m. to raise funds to help cover costs for the posters and pamphlets produced by CBCAN that are distributed to patients.

Initially, a goal of $5,000 was set, with Moon and Guttman the walk's lone participants. Now, dozens of people have signed up and Moon expects more than $20,000 will be generated.

"Talking with the people from ovarian cancer, which was a hidden cancer, nine years ago their first walk started with one woman and raised $1,000," he noted. "Today, their walk generates $2.5 million and it's a cancer that's very well known now.

We're trying to follow their blueprint."

Moon quit smoking immediately after being diagnosed and changed his diet. He continues to work full-time along with his volunteer duties for CBCAN.

"There have been times over the last year that I said to myself, 'Is this all worth it? It's like hockey all over again. Now it's a job,'" he laughed. "But there's a lot of satisfaction when you can help someone and there's not a week that goes by that we don't help someone. Whether it's getting a second opinion or just calming them down. It's a shock when you find out you've got cancer."
