Book drive

Having recently returned from working at an internally displaced person (IDP) camp in Nakuru, Kenya, Sarah Johnson wanted to do something to help the people she met on her month-long trip. So Johnson is holding a children's book drive to help stock library of the camp's newly-built school. Donations can be dropped off at Generations Physiotherapy, 371 Mountainview Rd. S. in Georgetown South. Johnson hopes to ship the books to Kenya around Christmas.

Tools For Schools: Air Quality & Climate Change

Tools for Schools is designed to help teachers and students access air quality and climate change data and resources. The Tools for Schools kit is intended to increase student awareness and understanding of the impact of air pollution and climate change on human health. The toolkit also links teachers and students to the Region's air monitoring data as an important learning tool.

The resources in the kit support the Ontario Environmental Education Curriculum. Halton schools can access these new resources and join efforts to positively influence air quality and address climate change in Halton by visiting www.halton.ca/toolsforschools.
