

Letters to the editor: Ryerson students to aid hurricane victims

Dear editor,

In May 2011, 41 Ryerson University students will be travelling to New Orleans, to take part in some post-Hurricane Katrina rebuilding work.

On behalf of the students taking part in this program I am requesting the community's support to assist all of us in our rebuilding/relief efforts.

It has been almost five and a half years since Hurricane Katrina and yet there are still numerous families that have been unable to return.

The St. Bernard Project and Ryerson students want to change that. St. Bernard Project has already rebuilt more than 310 homes and 50 are currently under construction.

The associated costs for volunteering are $920 for each student. Your support would be appreciated in reaching our fundraising goal of $12,000. We are asking our community to support us in helping the people of New Orleans rebuild their lives. We think the best way to rebuild people's lives is to start by rebuilding their homes.

To donate online visit www.ryerson.ca/supporting/onlinegiving (click on "choose the designation for your gift" followed by "New Orleans Community Service Trip" and follow the remaining instructions).

All donations above $20 will receive a tax receipt (Charitable number 119130383RR0001).
