Begonia

right habit so is not as 'stiff' looking as the others which suits the front of your border or a rockery.

Last but not least, there are the succulent hen and chickens, Sempervivum sp. The one that I chose to include is Sempervivum 'Oddity' and it certainly lives up to its name. The tubular, yet succulent, leaves give it that other-worldly look that many of the succulents have. Hen and chickens come in hundreds of different forms and Margie Van Wissen, Van Wissen Perennials on Embleton road, grows some of the best. (You can purchase them at the adjacent nursery.)

I must run now and get back to the plant cleaning. There are a few other sumptuous succulents waiting—the rosary vine, the Christmas cactus, the jade plant, etc., etc. etc.
