Once-exclusive $100K club not so exclusive anymore

The "sun" shone brightly on a number of public service workers in Halton last year.

Commonly referred to as the "sunshine list", every March 31 the Province releases the names and incomes of public employees who earned more than $100,000 in the previous calendar year.

The Public Sector Salary Disclosure Act covers municipal governments, universities and colleges, school boards, hospitals, Crown agencies, provincial ministries and others who are paid using tax dollars.

A total of 14 Town of Halton Hills employees made this year's list with Chief Administrative Office Dennis Perlin at the top with a salary of $178,393.

Director of Recreation and Parks Terry Alyman, Director of Library Services Jane Diamanti, Town treasurer and Director of Corporate Services Ed Desousa, Fire Chief Brent Marshall and Town Engineer and Director of Infrastructure Services Chris Mills followed at $138,398 each.

Halton Healthcare Services president and CEO John Oliver was the highest-paid Halton official at $474,795.

A total of 83 HHS employees made the list.

The provincial government is pressing forward with plans to tie the salaries of hospital CEOs directly to the performance of their medical institution.

New legislation crafted to bring more accountability to hospitals, called the Excellent Care For All Act, is scheduled to come into effect soon. It will likely lower the take-home pay of hospital CEOs who regularly top the list.

Ontario's hospitals soon must submit reports to the government on how they plan to improve their performance. The success of the hospital in meeting those goals will be tied to the pay structure for those at the top of the facility's management structure.

Below is a list of the other Halton organizations with the number of employees who made the list and significant earners:

Halton District School Board (223)

- Director Wayne Joudrie— $158,302
- Associate Director Ruth Peden— $189,026
- 11 superintendents earned between $158,302 and $166,789

Halton Catholic District School Board (113)

- Director Michael Pautler— $198,944
- Executive director Human Resources Joseph O'Hara— $153,023
- Nine superintendents earned between $127,364 and $165,284.

Halton Region (283)

- Commissioner and Medical Officer of Health Robert Nosal— $284,904
- CAO Patrick Moyle— $253,132
- Associate Medical Officer of Health Monir Taha— $249,042
- Commissioner Corporate Services Jane McCaskill— $221,547
- Police Chief Gary Crowell— $204,861
- Region Chair Gary Carr— $157,165

Other Halton groups with staff on the list included Mississauga-Halton Community Care Access (14), Halton Children's Aid Society (8), Credit Valley Conservation (7), Halton Region Conservation Authority (5), Halton Hills Family Health Team (2) and Canadian Mental Health Association Halton (1).

Fire calls

Crews called out for April Fool's 'joke'

Halton Hills firefighters were called to an Appelbe Court home about 2:20 p.m. Friday.

When they arrived they quickly determined the call was an April Fool's prank and there was no fire.

Police and fire department staff spoke to the person responsible for initiating the call about the seriousness and problems of prank calls.

Firefighters were called to Five Sideroad Sunday about 12:25 p.m. for a grassfire.

The fire originated on Tenth Line and quickly spread to the Five Sideroad area where it was extinguished by fire crews.

Clarification: Garage sale painting sold in 2007

Due to inaccurate information provided to The Independent & Free Press, a story in the March 31 edition contained two errors requiring clarification.

The story, Women seek heirloom sold in garage sale, incorrectly stated the year a painting titled, Peterborough Clock Tower at Night, was inadvertently sold in a garage sale in Georgetown. The painting was sold in 2007.

Also, the owner of the painting, Bruce MacLean, has not moved from Halton Hills, but is in the process of doing so.

The Independent & Free Press apologizes for any confusion caused by the story.
