ut & About

RIGHT: Actress Michelle Stafford, who plays Phyllis Newman on The Young and the Restless, reads up on the latest local happenings during a recent appearance at the Georgetown Market Place.

ABOVE: Last month, local music teachers presented a $900 cheque to the Canadian Red Cross to go towards the organization's Japan earthquake relief efforts. The teachers started a "Practicing for Pennies" program where their students would drop pennies into a jar every time they practiced a song – with a few extra dollars thrown in here and there by their parents. On hand for the presentation are (from left): music teachers Debbie Sehl, Gloria Wood, Margaret Faas, Lois Slessor, Marie Ketola, and Catherine Donnars Hodgson from the North Halton branch of the Red Cross. Absent: music teacher Irene Kerby.

LEFT: After years and years of service with a smile, Glen Williams' beloved Norm the Mailman (a.k.a. Norm McGowan) is retiring from his postal route. A huge crowd of Glen residents – including local councillor Joan Robson (left, with Norm) – gathered at the Glen Oven Café on May 7 to surprise Norm with cupcakes, handshakes and well wishes. Happy retirement, Norm!

LEFT: After getting off to a rainy start, the gardening season kicked into high gear on the Victoria Day long weekend. The Norval Community Association got in on the action on May 21 with the annual Lucy Maud Montgomery Heritage Garden Plant Sale. On hand to lend a helping hand are (from left): Tom Pettingill, Janice Dauphinee, Jean Hadlow, Norma Tripp, Margaret Walbank and Sandra Hamilton.
