GMC is expanding connectivity in the 2011 Terrain with the IntelliLink system.

Terrain to offer IntelliLink

GMC is taking in-vehicle connectivity to the next level on the 2012 Terrain. The compact crossover with segment-leading fuel efficiency will expand its already-extensive list of standard and available features in late 2011 with a simple-to-use, customizable infotainment system and expanded wireless capability. The 2012 Terrain will be the first vehicle to offer GMC IntelliLink, which uses Bluetooth or USB to connect the driver's smartphone to Terrain's new seven-inch, high-resolution, full-colour touch screen display radio. IntelliLink expands on the current Terrain's Bluetooth and USB capabilities to allow smartphone control via voice activation and steering wheel-mounted controls and streaming stereo audio from the phone. Most importantly, IntelliLink enables seamless integration of stowed portable devices with Terrain's infotainment system, allowing drivers to keep their hands on the wheel and eyes on the road.
