Ballinafad resident Steve Adams stands with his new multi-purpose cooking pit, a Jambo, imported from Texas.

Local barbecue master to duel in a Throwdown

By EAMONN MAHER
Staff Writer

Barbecue master Steve Adams settles for nothing less than perfection while working his grill and the Ballinafad resident is facing one of his toughest challenges to date.

The 51-year-old Adams, who along with his Team Cedar Grilling competitive cooking squad won three consecutive Canadian BBQ Championships from 2006-08, will go up against one of North America's top chefs at the Thrill of the Grill Throwdown Duel & Dinner June 17-19 at Deerhurst Resort in Huntsville.

Adams will be cooking solo, however, this time around in a made-for-TV setting with Deerhurst's Executive Chef, Rory Golden, serving as his opposition.

"What goes through my mind is that he cooked for the G8 Summit last year in Huntsville and it's kind of intimidating to see pictures of (U.S. President) Barack Obama and some of the world's most powerful people standing behind (Golden)," said Adams, who owns a cottage in Muskoka and many of his recipes draw from ingredients native to the area.

"I've been working for the past month on a few new ideas and I have a feeling what's going to come up when they present us with some surprise ingredients to work with. You get those products like shiitake mushrooms, cranberries, picklerel and pork and turn them into dishes that are unique and different. Muskoka is where I do all my cooking and I'm comfortable there. Once things get going, it'll be just like a regular competition."
