Q: I'm a single dad with a preteen daughter. Her mother is not involved. I have no idea how to parent a child of this age, let alone a girl. I do not have a lot of money but I do have coverage for some counselling from my workplace. Can you help me?

A: Without a doubt! Girls at this age need self-confidence and guidance so they are not easy targets for peer pressure. Without it they follow and do what the other kids suggest will make them 'fit in' and be popular. They are children and do not know how to set boundaries and guidelines for themselves. That is what you have to do for your daughter. When you come in I will spend some time with both of you together. Other times I will meet with each of you alone. I will get to know your daughter and earn her trust. I will explain to both of you that I will keep her confidentiality as much as possible unless I feel that she is at risk. That way she can share her secrets with me.

When you and I meet alone, we will discuss house rules and boundaries. A child of this age needs clear expectations, curfews and responsibilities to show her that she is an important part of a family and to ensure her success. She must be taught that engaging in high risk behaviour such as drug use, alcohol or sex at her age is not acceptable and that it is ok to say no to her friends. Most important, she has to know that unlike her mother, you will not abandon her or stop loving her no matter what she does. Her self-esteem has been damaged and with guidance you will rebuild it so that she stays safe and does not look for love from strangers to feel valuable.

Q: What can an Occupational Therapist do for me?

A: An Occupational Therapist is a Registered Health Professional and a very important part of your healthcare team. Occupational therapy services may include services such as comprehensive evaluations of the client's home and other environments (workplace, school), recommendations for adaptive equipment (wheelchairs, walkers etc.) and training in its use. An Occupational Therapist will also provide guidance and education for family members and caregivers. Occupational therapy practitioners have a holistic perspective, in which the focus is on adapting the environment to fit the person. They will help the client set and achieve realistic therapy goals.

In Focus Physiotherapy Inc. is pleased to welcome Siobhan Smith, Registered Occupational Therapist to our team!

Q: My husband and I have separated. We want to have a Separation Agreement but my husband does not want to pay a lawyer to prepare it. Can we do it on our own?

A: In order to have a valid Separation Agreement you need to have full financial disclosure from each other which is done by each of you preparing a Financial Statement and swearing in the presence of a commissioner (usually a lawyer) that the statement is true. You also both need to obtain independent legal advice from your own lawyer. The Separation Agreement must also be in writing and dated and signed by the parties in the presence of witnesses.

If you are missing any of the criteria then the Separation Agreement is weakened and could possibly be overturned in the future by the court. It is best to make notes for your lawyer setting out what you and your husband agree upon and the lawyer will draft the Separation Agreement and ensure your rights are being protected and help you to negotiate any issues that you are unable to agree upon with your husband.
