Local girl vies for Miss Teen title

A 17-year-old Georgetown resident will be vying for the title of Miss Teen Canada-World this weekend in Toronto.

Allison Rosset, a Grade 11 Christ the King student, will be competing with more than 70 finalists from across Canada for the crown on Sunday at the Queen Elizabeth Theatre on the CNE grounds. She earned the title Miss Teen Georgetown in the provincial finals last November, qualifying her to compete this weekend.

Rosset will be judged on her personality, ability to communicate, stage presence, charm, academics, commitment to the community, beauty, fitness and confidence.

One of the award categories is People's Choice Award which is given to the delegate with the most online votes before the competition. To vote for Rosset for that award visit as soon as possible before Saturday's competition <http://www.missteencanadaworld.com/> and follow the steps.

To learn more about Rosset visit <http://www.missteencanadaworld.com/mtcw-finals/finalists> and click on details by her name and photo.
