

John Rumor of King Paving Materials (KPM) took a moment from pouring concrete curbs on Greystone Crescent Wednesday to top up his fluids to combat the intense heat. Halton Hills residents will have to continue to find ways to beat the heat for a few more days as temperatures remain high.

Hot weather hanging around for a few days

"We still have another week to go before we reach the dog days of summer," he says.

There is a 30 per cent chance of rain on Sunday or Monday but Phillips it's unlikely the sky will bless us with moisture.

"We've had a tenth of what we normally would get in a three-and-a-half week period," he said.

During a heat wave everyone is at risk, but some people are more vulnerable than others including older adults (65+) infants and young children and the chronically ill, including people with asthma.

"We want our residents to know that they have cool safe places to go to escape from the heat," says Halton Hills Mayor Rick Bonnette. "We have been in touch with community service providers to inform them of the Town's Cooling Centres as they deal first-hand with the people who are most vulnerable."

Cooling centres are open during their standard business hours as places of refuge for people seeking relief from the heat. Call the facilities for their operating hours. Below is a list:
