

Eos at a glance

 The suspension consists of McPherson struts with stabilizer bar up front and a four-link independent rear suspension with telescopic shock absorbers at the rear.

This results a firm, but fairly comfortable ride, soaking up the bumps with relative ease. The power-assisted steering is also precise and predictable with a short turning circle.

This is more of a touring car than a sports car, but that's certainly not a bad thing as the Eos can be a great road vehicle that churns up the kilometers in style.

However, the rear window on the Eos is smallish and with the headrests in play, the visibility when reversing direction is restricted.

Like all convertibles, the Eos has its limitations. But convertibles are what they are and for the money, you would be hard pressed to do better than the Eos.

It provides the best of all worlds: a coupe in foul weather and convertible when the sun shines.

Think of it as a convertible for all seasons.

SHOP LOCAL

When asked to name our favorite restaurant, cafe, or shop, we almost always cite a unique local business (look at the results in our Readers' Choice as proof). We embrace the idea of distinctive businesses with local character, but often forget their survival depends on our patronage. It is easy for us to get so consumed by efficiency that we forget how much of our lives we spend eating out, shopping, and doing other business. We owe it to ourselves to consider the quality of our experience, and ask if we benefit when we choose a community-based business. Local owners with much of their life savings invested in their businesses have a natural interest in the long-term health of the community. Community-based businesses are essential to charitable endeavors, frequently serving on local boards, and supporting a variety of causes. Yes, there are some corporate chains that give back to towns in which they do business, but anyone who raises funds for local non-profits will tell you that independents are their base of support. So... support your neighbors... support our community, shop smart... shop for next next vehicle in Halton Hills!
