Is there a 'perfect time' to book a furnace maintenance?

Is there a 'perfect time' to book a furnace maintenance?

Here's a surprising answer to that question from Direct Energy's, Dave Walton:

"Believe it or not, a furnace maintenance can be performed anytime. The main objective is to get it booked well before the cold arrives. One interesting fact; your furnace and air conditioner have more in common than you might guess. Did you know that while you're enjoying the cool air coming through the vents, your furnace has a hand in pushing the cooled air to destinations throughout the home? The blower motor helps circulate the cool air from the air conditioner through the duct work in your home.

Back to the annual maintenance question. Right now, most Canadians are enjoying the good old days of summer. Who wants to spoil the mood by thinking about the seasonal change laying in wait? My suggestion is to take a quick half hour, while on the dock or patio, and jot down what needs to be done in order to get the home ready for fall and winter. I'm sure your annual furnace maintenance will appear on that list. In order to beat the rush, you can consider having the maintenance performed in September or even August. Then you can get back to enjoying the summer."
