

Summer in Halton Hills

Photos by Ted Brown

Rodger Knight shows Cole Clarkson, 12, Davis Jacome, 11, and Cameron Cerant, 15, how to properly use Nordic walking poles.

LEFT: Members of the Ministry of Natural Resources Ontario Stewardship Rangers program were at Willow Park Ecology Centre recently to measure and identify trees and remove invasive plants. Sean Tollessen, 16, of Aurora, measures the height of a tree by using simple geometry, while Arianna Markle, 16, of Newmarket, records the data.
