Household Hazardous Waste (HHW) Depot

Household hazardous waste can injure waste collectors and can damage the environment if disposed of improperly. Household hazardous waste must not be put in the garbage or poured down the drain. Each year the HHW Depot recycles or properly disposes over 900,000 litres of household hazardous waste.

There is a 20 litre maximum per visit (residential loads only).

Support for parents-to-be just got better

With an increasing demand from residents for quality online information and services, Halton Region's Health Department recently launched a new online prenatal program. Now parents-to-be have another convenient option to access quality health information at a very important time in their lives. The program enhances the online parenting support already offered through www.HaltonParents.ca, the HaltonParents blog and Twitter. Complimentary to this support, the Health Department also coordinates two expert-led workshops: a two-hour breastfeeding workshop and a prenatal car seat workshop. To find out more about any of these free programs, to follow us, or to register, visit www.HaltonParents.ca or dial 311.
