Beautiful sunny skies brought crowds of people to the Gellert Community Centre on September 18 for the 31st annual Terry Fox Run. Participants walked, ran, rollerbladed, biked and scootered around the park to raise money for cancer research. The event also included games, prizes, balloons, face painting, and snacks. The Georgetown run raised $24,500 this year, which, when combined with the donations made over the last 31 years, has pushed Halton Hills over the $1 million mark. Bravo, Halton Hills!
