Former Acton man was 'genuine guy', says friend

Continued from pg. 1

Sgt. Paul Davies of the CRU said no charges are expected.

"While attempting to pass another motorcycle in the group the decedent observed an oncoming car and in his attempt to get back into his lane he lost control," said Davies.

He said the car was approximately 100 metres away from Peddle. After the crash, the driver of the car stopped to help Peddle, said Davies.

Investigators examined the scene for several hours while evidence was collected and analyzed. The weather at the time was clear, sunny and dry.

Davies said a message Halton Police want to get out to all motorcyclists is that when riding in a group they should follow the staggered riding formation as laid out in the MTO Official Motorcycle Handbook.

"You really have to know the riders, and their habits, of the group you're with," said Davies.

Anyone with information on the crash is asked to call Det. Const. Dave McDougall at 905-878-5511 ext. 5142 or Det. Const. Kevin Rye at ext. 5056.

Dave Royce, a longtime friend of Peddle's, said he was born in Newfoundland and moved to Acton when Peddle was in Grade 9. He attended and graduated from Georgetown High School.

Royce said he moved to Shelburne a couple of years ago.

He said Peddle had worked in construction and woodworking for several years and after studying law enforcement in college had been trying to get a job as a police officer.

Peddle had always talked about getting a motorcycle, said Royce. He got the bike last year, he said.

"He was a genuine guy," said Royce. "He was really loyal and true-hearted."

Peddle's cousin Kevin Peddle of Acton said, "he was more than a cousin, he was like a brother."

"He would do anything for you," said Kevin. "He would drop anything if you needed him, and come and help you out."

Visitation for Peddle will be today (Thursday) from 5 to 9 p.m. at Brampton Memorial Gardens at 10061 Chinguacousy Road, Brampton. The funeral service will be at 1 p.m. Friday in the chapel there.
