

Canadian folk-soul singer stops in Georgetown

Born into a musical family of guitarists, vocalists, songwriters, drummers, Amy Cunningham has had a lifelong love affair with music. She began singing at the age of two, and now at 29 is touring the country sharing her music.

Mixed with solid lyrical expression, and beautiful melodies, Cunningham's messages speak to the masses about growth, change, and often eco-centric concepts.

To hear her original music, you can catch her set on Saturday, October 22 at the St. George Pub in Georgetown, 7 Main St. N., at 9 p.m.

In July 2011, Cunningham released her debut album, To the Stars We'll Return, produced by gifted multi-instrumentalist Corwin Fox (Morlove, Scott Dunbar).

Cunningham is currently on tour in support of the album, travelling solo in her van, which now holds the entirety of her earthly possessions.

"I love it," Cunningham said with a big smile. "I get to meet so many amazing people every day. I'm encouraged by conversations...people know that a lot of things aren't working out there, and many are starting to get involved... at the end of the day, a lot of people care. That's what this is about for me."

Cunningham is currently at the end of a cross-Canada tour, then it's a monthlong residency in Nashville in November, and a six-week tour in Japan to kickoff 2012. And then it's back in Western Canada by March 2012.
