Burgers, beers and hairy lips

Sheridan College students hosted a Movember Burger and Beer event Saturday at the Main Street Inn in Georgetown and managed to raise $1,900 in support of men's health issues, specifically prostate cancer. Sheridan organizers, (from left) Victoria Monachino, Haley Scarlett, Steph Aoun, Phil Price, Cara Galloway and Sandra Kantor donned face fuzz for the event in which participants received a burger, beer and baked goods at the Inn. A number of prizes were also auctioned off with proceeds going to the cause. (Below) Jim Clarke of Georgetown chows down on a juicy burger. Movember events, in which men were encouraged to grow mustaches during November, raised $32 million Canada-wide this year.

Seniors rally for new centres

Georgetown and Acton Seniors Centres protested the exclusion before council ratified the 2012 Capital Budget and Capital Forecast.

"The news that these projects have been removed from the forecast is a major setback and a real disappointment," Georgetown Seniors Centre president Rick Chambers told council.

"We understand the financial restraints that council faces," added

Acton Seniors Centre president Bev Jones, "but a seniors centre is a major component of the community."

When Halton Hills seniors walked away from the special council meeting held at Christ the King School last February approving the three-arena project, they had understood that council also directed staff to place plans for their centres into the Capital Forecast.
