

CFUW – Georgetown Meeting

The CFUW kicked off 2012 with a talk by "one of their own," Matthew Johnson, who shared his knowledge of stem cells with the assembled crowd.

LEFT: Jan Costain (left) and Judy Rivers share a smile.

BELOW LEFT: A couple of Anns – Ann Lawlor (left) and Ann Rae – enjoy refreshments after the talk.

RIGHT: Frances Walker (left) and Lisette Logan catch up at the meeting.

The Georgetown chapter of the Canadian Federation of University Women (CFUW) kicked off the new year on January 10 with an interesting lecture on stem cells. Led by Matthew Johnson, a business development manager with the Ontario Centres of Excellence and the son of CFUW member Moya Johnson, the talk focused on the different types of stem cells, where they come from, how they are made, and various current and future clinical applications. The next CFUW meeting is scheduled for February 7 and will feature guest speaker Dr. Debbie Zeni, who will be leading a discussion titled "The Growth of a Cooperative Health Care Project in Uganda." For more information, visit www.cfuw-georgetown.ca.

Photos by Andrea Lefebvre

Community Artwork Project Outdoor Gallery

The renovation of the Georgetown branch of the Halton Hills Public Library got a little bit prettier recently with the unveiling of the Community Artwork Project Outdoor Gallery. More than 20 groups and individuals of all ages created paintings about what the library means to them. The art can be found on the Market Street hoarding and will remain on display there until the building's grand reopening in 2012.

Photos by Calvin Dyke

All the artists stand in front of a communal piece done by the school.

ABOVE: Aydan Gogan, his sister Emma, and Cole Barrager show off their painting.

BELOW: Councillor Jane Fogal unveils the artwork on the fence.

Before moving to Chicago, Lily and Bria Eldon made this piece so they could to share their connection to the library.

Bratin Auto

82 Main St. N.,
Georgetown

905-873-6127

To book an appointment.

WINTER MAINTENANCE SPECIAL

*Includes oil change, tire rotation, battery test, 30 point inspection
(on most vehicles)*

$39.95

Expires February 29, 2012