The smart fortwo has undergone a number of styling changes inside and out for 2012.

Smart fortwo will boast new look

The spring of 2012 will see the smart fortwo making its mark in a striking new look, featuring an upgraded exterior and a fresh leather/fabric mix in the interior.

The substantially revamped smart fortwo sports a markedly more dynamic appearance, featuring a larger radiator grille with integrated logo, striking front aprons in a new design, horizontally arranged LED daytime driving lights, muscular side skirts and modified rear aprons.

The chrome-coloured logo is now positioned directly in the black radiator grille.

While the main focus of this facelift is on the exterior, there are changes inside the car, too.

These include a new, high-quality interior package in crystal grey, comprising a fresh leather/fabric combination for the seats, an imitation leather/fabric mix for the door trims and black imitation leather for the instrument panel in combination with a grey kneepad.

The five lines—pure, pulse, passion, BRABUS and BRABUS Xclusive—are to be retained.

Similarly, the smart fortwo will continue to be available as a coupe and cabrio version and with six engine and motor variants.
