The students at Halton Hills Christian School had the chance to study more than the usual reading, writing and arithmetic last month thanks to the school's exploratory program. Students chose from a variety of different activities and topics – including curling, martial arts, horsemanship, science, photography, architecture, baking and much more – and got to explore those subjects every Thursday afternoon for the month of February. With so many different experiences to choose from, there was something fun for everybody.
