Redecorate without spending a fortune

The best way to give your home a facelift without spending a fortune is to use materials that you already have on hand. With a bit of time and effort you can restore furniture and freshen up your home very inexpensively.

If your old furniture is made of solid wood, for example, it can easily be refurbished and enjoyed for years to come. Just strip it down or paint it a fashionable colour. You could also remove or add decorative features and change any handles or knobs for modern ones.

Next, find out when and where auctions will be held in your area. These estate sales and close-outs are one of the cheapest ways to furnish a home. If you're a real bargain hunter, choose defective items and fix them up: chairs with damaged caning, drapes with frayed edges, or repainted furniture. Antique dealers may turn up their noses because of the work involved in restoring such things, but if you're patient and savvy, you can acquire the know-how to do this kind of repair work.

If you'd like to create a warm, cozy atmosphere in your living room, a bioethanol fireplace could be an economical as well as an ecological solution. This type of fireplace is easy to install, does not require a chimney, uses renewable energy, and quickly heats a room. It is also smokeless, scentless, and there are no ashes to clean up. This sort of fireplace does require certification, however, and can only be installed in fairly large, well ventilated rooms.

Last but not least, LED lights are the latest trend in penny-pinch decorating, as they consume very little energy. They are available in every possible size and shape to create a welcoming and cozy atmosphere in your home.
