

Ernie's friends moved away from the neighbourhood...

At Chartwell, they're just down the hall

There was a time when Ernie knew everyone in the neighbourhood. Running into friends was as easy as taking a morning walk or watering the grass in the early evening. But as the years passed, the neighbourhood began to change. Over time, Ernie's friends began moving away and life became lonelier.

Now at Chartwell, Ernie is part of an active community again. Not only is he making new friends, but he is back to doing the things he's always enjoyed: a morning coffee with the gang, a game of afternoon cards and shooting pool after dinner. Like your friends just down the hall? We can help.
