

Arrest in rash of thefts from vehicles

A 26-year-old Acton man charged with 17 counts of theft under $5,000 was caught red-handed with items stolen from vehicles.

On Facebook, a writer recount how his mother noticed her motion detection lights go on at 3 a.m. last Thursday and she saw someone attempting to get into their three locked cars parked in their driveway, and then move across the street.

Her husband called police and gave chase, and Halton police arrested a suspect in the area and found he was in possession of several stolen items, which police did not identify.

Police said the investigation to date involved vehicles – most of them unlocked – on Greenore Crescent, Cameron Street, Kingham Road, Church Street East, Wright Avenue and Birchway Place.

Halton police said these particular crimes are largely preventable with simple crime prevention techniques including:

- parking in an enclosed garage or a well lit area.
- never leaving valuables in plain sight or removing them from a vehicle entirely
- locking your vehicle.

Protest closes Acton elementary public schools

Acton elementary public schools – and all those in Halton – will be closed tomorrow (Friday) by a “political protest” by public elementary school teachers, some early childhood educators and other school staff.

As some parents scrambled to find care for their children the issue of whether it was an wildcat strike or legal walkout were still being debated by the province and union leaders. At press time, no other details were available.
