

Mill fire -- again, again

Yet another fire occurred at the abandoned Old Mill building on River Rd. in Georgetown Saturday afternoon. Deputy fire chief Bob Hyde discovered a couch located inside the building on fire, and notified his department. The cause is unknown, but it may have been set by kids partying in the area, according to the fire department.

Late Tuesday, firefighters extinguished yet another fire at the Old Mill building. Police discovered a pile of garbage burning on the floor at the rear of the building and notified the fire department. This is the fourth fire in as many weeks at the old building. Police believe they are caused by youths partying in the area.
