Police start campaign to stop snowmobile abuses

By SCOTT KLINE
Halton Regional Police in north Halton have started a campaign to reduce "flagrant violations" of laws and bylaws applying to snowmobile use.

"The extra snow we have had this year seems to have brought the snow machines back into town," Staff Sergeant Mike Kingston said. He said the force has received numerous complaints from north Halton residents about snow machines.

"We are going to try to get the snow machine operators to stop flagrant violations of the laws," Kingston said.

Among the laws to be most strictly enforced is Bylaw 75-82 which regulates snowmobile use "within the Corporation of the Town of Halton Hills."

Under the bylaw, "there is an absolute prohibition on the operation of a snow machine" between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m. from Monday to Saturday, and from 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. Sundays.

As well, snowmobilers are not permitted to ride on any sidewalk, boulevard, park or median strip in the town at any time.

So far this year police have laid few charges under the bylaw or under the Motorized Snow Vehicles Act but at least one operators in Milton has been charged with driving while impaired as a result of a complaint.

Under the MSVA, operators must be have an Ontario Driver's licence or snowmobile operators permit if under 16-years-old, or have a valid licence from another province.

A helmet must be worn by everyone riding on the snow machine or on anything being towed by the snow machine and everyone operating the vehicle must have insurance.

Under the bylaw, the snow machine must have a "florescent safety antenna of not less than five feet in height from ground level."

And driving along Town roads is only permitted "for ingree and egress to a (trail) site."

"The snow machines are not allowed on roadways except to go straight to and from the places where they have authorization to operate (like trails)," Staff Sgt. Kingston added.

He said if riders are stopped and are unaware of the laws governing snowmobile use, "we will warn them and put them right."

"We will explain what they can and can't do," with emphasis on wearing a helmet, making sure the driver is insured and that the machine is plated, he added.

The Rookie gets top marks Hollywood Beat

By DAVID GIAMMARCO
Directed by Clint Eastwood, The Rookie also stars Eastwood as well as Charlie Sheen. And for all the tired old cliches of the film genre, The Rookie succeeds in side-stepping all the usual pitfalls and comes out ahead of the game.

The Rookie takes a great twist on the all too familiar requirements of a cop flick. The action/chase scenes are impressive and expertly staged, as is the intricate camerawork - Eastwood's clear involvement. As well, the biting, tongue-in-cheek humor infused by Eastwood and Sheen is refreshing and provides a great slant on some of the lame dialogue. The duo have a highly amusing and quite likeable rapport on screen that alone makes The Rookie worth seeing.

In Eastwood's very capable hands, he's turned The Rookie into a slick, snappy, thrill-a-minute joyride that's a lot of fun ... just check your I.Q.s at the door.

Out of ten, The Rookie rates a seven.
