COMPANION PLANTING

The cold winter months can sometimes be a long, frustrating time for some gardeners. However, this time can be effectively used to plan this seasons garden. The most successful and rewarding gardens are created during winter nights. This is the time to decide what to plant, where to plant and how much. But I'm not referring to a regular vegetable garden, I'm referring to one that takes advantage of the natural dislike some insects have for certain plants. When certain plants are grown in close association with each other, then insect pests are repelled. This is the basis of companion planting. Using a plants natural insect repellent qualities can be an effective method of controlling pests in your garden this season.

Here is a few recommended plants to use in this seasons garden as companion plants.

- * To discourage aphids on fruit trees plant petunias or nasturtiums around the trunk of the tree. Mint, garlic, chives and coriander are also effective to deter aphids.
- * Tomato plants, rosemary and sage grown in association with cabbages will help to keep cabbage maggots from attacking.
- * Slugs and snails can cause extensive damage to a variety of plants but tend to avoid even their favorite plants when rosemary or artemisia is planted nearby.
- * Plant marigolds amongst tomato plants to deter the large tomato hornworm.
- * Protect potatoes from the colorado potato beetle with horseradish.
- * Leafhoppers dislike petunias and geraniums.

Each week Christine Cole of Tuitman's Garden Centre and Landscaping, Highway 25, 1 mile south of Acton, 853-2480, will be presenting helpful tips and information to assist you in creating your garden showplace!
