

Optimists host Respect for Law awards

Plus, Sandy Booth honored for longtime work

Top left: Det. Sgt. Mike Eacrett of Halton Regional Police, made the presentation of a plaque to Ruth Poullos of Georgetown at the Optimists Respect for Law Awards,

May 28 at the Optimists Hall. Mrs Poullos was instrumental in aiding police to make an arrest in conjunction with a jewelry store robbery in August of 1990. Mrs.

Poullos followed a masked man running from a store to his car and recorded the licence plate, and reported it to police. Another recipient, Mrs Garland Clark, of Mississauga was unable to be present for her presentation. She reported seeing two youths attempting to break into a newspaper box, and police were able to make an arrest, clearing a number of incidents.

Top right, Det. Cst. Brian Farrell was honored by Optimists, as Mayor Russ Miller presented him with a plaque for his contribution to Halton Regional Police over the years.

Middle right: Halton Hills Councillor Pam Johnston presented Det. Cst. Kelth Woodstra with a plaque, Woodstra was recognized for outstanding efforts in solving crimes in the Halton Hills area.

Bottom right: Don Smith, of the Georgetown Optimists Club, honored longtime member Sandy Booth, for his efforts over the years in the club, and especially for work on the recent Bang-o-rama event at Georgetown fairgrounds.
